29th Australasian Polymer Symposium

Invitation to attend

The Polymer Division of the Royal Australian Chemical Institute (RACI) extends an invitation to you to attend the 29th Australasian Polymer Symposium (29th APS) in Hobart from the 11th to the 15th of February 2007.

The symposium will address current topics in polymerization mechanism and kinetics, living free radical polymerization, functional polymers, nano-composites, polymers in biological systems, polymers at surfaces and interfaces as well as complex polymer architectures.

We have endeavoured to compose an exciting program with a range of high calibre plenary and invited lectures in the above areas. Still, the program leaves plenty of opportunity for contributed lectures or poster presentations and we are looking forward to your abstract submission.

Tasmania in February is a location of great natural beauty as well as mild temperatures and the southern most Australian state offers a range of nature based activities that will make your stay truly memorable.

We hope you will be part of our Tasmanian Feast of International Polymer Science in 2007!

See you in Tasmania
